Look out for a great line-up of family movies
this month on Front Row

ntl:

I hate documentaries about cute, cuddly animals.

Not that wild about wildlife programmes? No problem. With six ntl TV Packs to choose from, you won't waste a penny on channels you never watch. Or spend a fortune on those you do – as each TV Pack costs just £3 or less a month.

Love music? Then our Music & Games Pack is a must, with VH1, The Box and, of course, MTV.

Or maybe you're a science fiction fanatic. In which case, you'll encounter more than you bargained for with our Action Pack. It includes Sky One (The X-Files and Star Trek: Voyager) and the Sci-Fi Channel.

If, on the other hand, you want to stay in touch with what's going on down here on earth, there's our News & Sports Pack.

And to keep the rest of the family happy, you might also want to consider our Family and Lifestyle Packs.

Of course, if you'd rather watch paint dry than a colony of meerkats, there's still enough to tempt you in our World Pack, where alongside a channel devoted to DIY, you'll also find The History Channel and the Discovery Channel. (As well as countless wildlife programmes of course – if you like that sort of thing.)

Brian Viner's Cable Stars

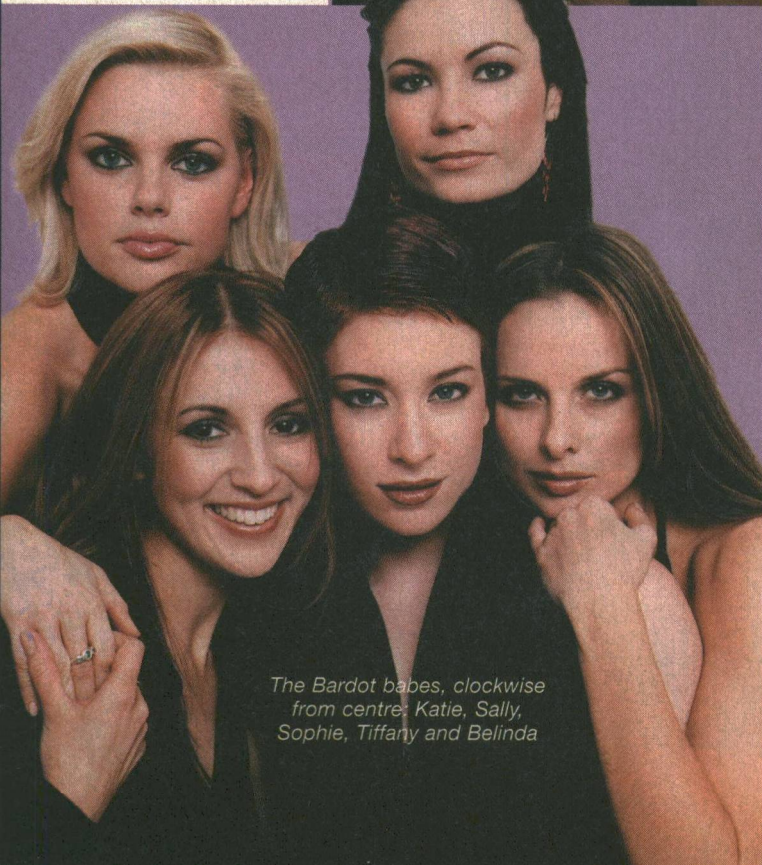

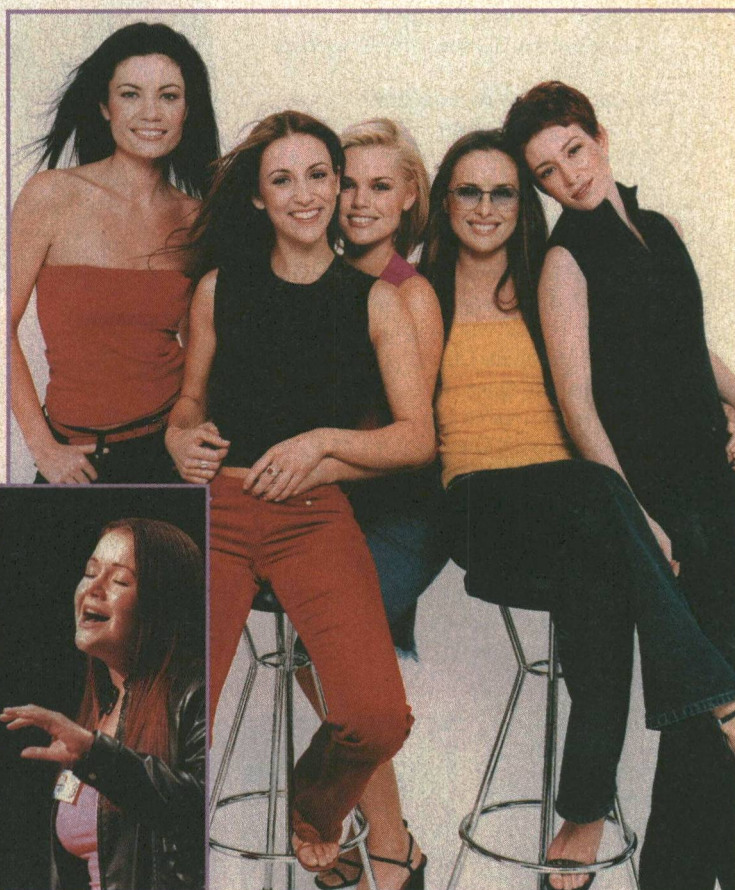

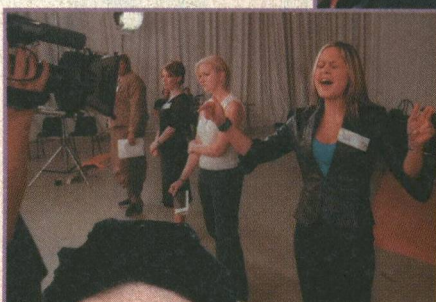

Popstars Down Under

We gave Australia our highest-rated entertainment show, Who Wants to Be a Millionaire?, but Australia gave us theirs – Popstars. Long before most of us had even heard of 'nasty' Nigel Lythgoe, the plain-speaking TV executive who puts Britain's aspiring pop stars through their paces, 2500 Australian girls started auditioning to become part of a new girl band. Eventually the 2500 were whittled down to ten, and then to five – Belinda Chapple, Sophie Monk, Sally Polihronas, Katie Underwood and Tiffany Wood became Bardot, and duly entered the record books as the first Australian act to enter the charts at number one with their debut single, Poison. Their debut album achieved platinum status, and now they even have their own line of clothing.

Meanwhile, if the questionnaires are anything to go by, the Bardot girls are rather more interesting than your average young pop stars. Belinda names her favourite movie as Schindler's List, and she collects Salvador Dali prints. Sophie's favourite singer is Barbra Streisand. Sally is reading the works of the Dalai Lama. Katie's biggest career influence was soul-rock band Sly and the Family Stone. And Tiffany is into clairvoyance in a big way. She says she predicted in 1995 that by the year 2000 she would be a pop star with a hit single.

As for when Bardot will hit the top of the British charts, though, Tiffany either doesn't know or isn't saying.

Saturday is Stelling's day

Jeff Stelling, the admirably calm and resourceful presenter of Sky Sports' Soccer Saturday, has a heavy cross to bear. He is, and has forever been, a fan of lowly Hartlepool United. 'I started going to home games with my older sister from the age of about six or seven,' he recalls. 'One of the few bright spots in three decades of gloom was when we had Brian Clough as manager,' he says. 'In 1967 we finished about sixth in the old Fourth Division, then Cloughie left to join Derby, but the following season, thanks to the players he'd brought in, we were promoted.' I ask Stelling whether any famous players have ended their careers at Hartlepool. 'I'd put it slightly differently,' he says. 'Hartlepool have ended some careers.' We both laugh. Bobby Kerr, the FA Cup-winning captain of Sunderland, wound up at Hartlepool, he informs me. 'And Don Hutchison [now at Sunderland] started there.'

Stelling is a sports nut who has presented everything from darts to greyhound racing. But football is his passion, and he plays a blinder on Soccer Saturday, frequently against the odds. 'On the face of it,' he concedes, 'it is a most unpromising format. You don't see a ball kicked or a save made.' Instead, you see a bunch of old footballers, among them George Best and Rodney Marsh, gazing into monitors, giving the lowdown on a particular match. Stelling presides expertly over a team of pundits who are not, it has to be said, born broadcasters. 'It's not easy to watch a match and talk to the public at the same time,' he says, loyally. 'But they really enjoy it. Rodney is always first in, and Bestie turns up every week, so he must enjoy it.'

Hamel's got the Blues

It's 20 years since the biggest break of Veronica Hamel's career, a break which came hard on the heels of her biggest humiliation. 'I was sent a script for the pilot episode of a TV show, then called Hill Street Station,' she explains. 'But I couldn't do it because I was going to Kansas City to do a play. I left Los Angeles for Kansas City with a big fanfare from my friends, but five days later I was back. They'd fired me. I guess they hated me. Luckily, the part in Hill Street had still not been cast. I was the 60th girl they saw, and they offered me the part.'

Thus it was that Hamel got to play feisty but fabulous public defender Joyce Davenport, lover and later wife of Captain Frank Furillo (played by Daniel J Travanti), in NBC's hit show Hill Street Blues. It wasn't a hit to start with, though. Despite rave reviews for the grittiness and humour with which it chronicled everyday life in a police precinct house, audience figures were pitiful. 'It was the lowest-rated show ever to be renewed,' Hamel tells me. 'Fred Silverman, the president of NBC Television, had said that he wanted to make quality programmes, so we felt that he was sticking with it because of his commitment to quality. Later I found out that he stuck with it mainly because he didn't have an hour-long show to replace it.' Whatever the reasons, Silverman's decision paid off. Not only did Hill Street Blues win a sackful of prestigious Emmy awards, it changed the whole landscape of television. Its creator, Steven Bochco, was so determined to make it stand out from the pack that he stuffed it with far more characters than any drama series had ever had. Indeed, Bochco's trademark multiple storylining – a vibrant mixture of plot and sub-plot going on simultaneously – grew almost by accident out of the abundance of characters. 'It was the only way to service that number of characters,' he once told me. 'Then we started scripting background dialogue, devising interesting little visual things. I think we altered the public expectation of what hour-long television could be.'

Bochco's influence even crossed the Atlantic. Lots of British directors and producers acknowledge their debt to Hill Street Blues. Now, two decades on, Hamel has finally followed it over. She is here to promote the reruns on Granada Plus, and clearly retains great affection for the show, which finished in 1987. 'There was recently a vote on the ten television events that impacted most on America,' she says. 'The Hill Street pilot was third, along with the moon-landing and the Kennedy assassination. Isn't that great?' It sure is.

Has the great man ever turned up under the influence? 'Not for a couple of years. And let's just say he was under the weather, not under the influence.'

The greatest moment in the history of Soccer Saturday, Stelling adds, came at the beginning of this season, when the outspoken Rodney Marsh had his head very publicly shaved – the result of a rash statement made last season, namely that he would surrender his locks if the struggling Premiership team Bradford City avoided relegation. Marsh paid his dues at Bradford's ground, Valley Parade.

'Afterwards he was escorted from the pitch by a guy with Head Steward on his coat,' says Stelling. 'That brought the house down.'

Harrison who?

When Garth Pearce visited the set of the original Star Wars in 1976, he wasn't the only one who thought the project seemed doomed to obscurity

YOU COULDN'T help but feel sorry for Harrison Ford on the set of Star Wars. Here was a struggling, unknown actor, running out of time, in what looked to be a giant turkey of a movie.

I had arrived at Elstree Studios, Hertfordshire, on the baking hot morning of June 22nd 1976 to visit my first film set, in the hope of interviewing real stars like Sir Alec Guinness or Peter Cushing. Instead, I got Harrison ... who? A glance at a list of his past achievements was hardly revealing. Something called Dead Heat on a Merry-Go-Round was his debut film in 1966 and in the ten years since he had mustered appearances in just six more movies. He was 34. What had he been doing in between? He was vague: 'Oh, this and that,' he said. 'Television stuff – you probably wouldn't have heard of it.' He failed to mention at the time that weeks before the start of Star Wars, he was working as a carpenter.

The other unknowns, Mark Hamill, who was only 24, and the heroine, Carrie Fisher, who was 19, might be able to get over the embarrassment and go on to better things. But Harrison? No chance. I was only here in the first place because, clearly, any decent film journalist with half an eye for a hit movie had passed up the chance to visit.

The costumes looked like something the puppets wore in Thunderbirds and the film set appeared to be full of leftovers from Dr Who. Carrie Fisher had bumbled on about it being a 'sort of Wizard of Oz in space,' only to be immediately contradicted by Hamill, who declared, 'It's a space fantasy – but not that sort of fantasy.'

In truth, no one seemed to have a clue what the film would be about or their characters. Even Bristol body builder Dave Prowse (see interview, right) just described his role as Darth Vader as being 'the baddie'.

He then shut the visor on the black suit and delivered his lines. (Hollywood actor James Earl Jones later dubbed over Prowse's voice for Darth Vader.)

As he listened to the lines, rolling in from deepest Somerset, Harrison Ford looked as if he knew the game was up. It would, surely, be back to carpentry for life.

Darth star

The two characters Dave Prowse is best known for are polar opposites, which is how he likes it, he tells

Brian Viner

DAVE PROWSE is barely a household name in his own household, and yet the man is an icon. Because 65-year-old Prowse is better known as Darth Vader. But he does nice as well as nasty, for he was also the Green Cross Code man. It is one of the great snippets of screen trivia, that Darth Vader, scourge of the universe, had another job teaching road safety to children.

A mild-mannered Bristolian, who has just completed an autobiography and was awarded an MBE for Services to Charity and Road Safety, Prowse's fascinating career began to take shape when he was 13 and classified as disabled. 'My leg was in a brace for two years,' he explains. 'When I came out of the brace I was 6ft 5in and weighed 11 stone. I started body building and nine years later I was 6ft 7in and weighed 17st 3lbs. I was British heavyweight weightlifting champion in 1962, 1963 and 1964. Then I did the rounds as Britain's Strongest Man, tearing up telephone directories and such like.'

His size caught the attention of the

FIVE THINGS YOU DIDN'T KNOW

1 The name Wookiee (Chewbacca is a Wookiee) came about as a result of an accident. When San Francisco DJ Terry McGovern was doing voice-over work on the 1970 film THX 1138 for George Lucas, he made a blunder and exclaimed, 'I think I ran over a wookiee back there.' Lucas, confused, asked what he meant by the term. McGovern admitted that he didn't know and added that he simply made it up. Lucas never forgot the cute word and used it years later in Star Wars.

2 According to the Smithsonian exhibit in Washington, the sound of a TIE fighter is created by combining the squeal of a young elephant with the sound of a car driving by on a rain-slicked highway.

3 Burt Reynolds was originally cast as dashing pilot Han Solo, but he dropped out. Christopher Walken and Nick Nolte were also considered for the role before relative unknown Harrison Ford Hammer organisation. In 1971 he was busy playing a variety of monsters when his agent called to say that Stanley Kubrick wanted to see him. Prowse was duly cast as a bodyguard in Kubrick's A Clockwork Orange. He only had one line of dialogue but a scene-stealing moment when he carried wheelchair-bound Patrick McGee down several flights of stairs. The scene caught the attention of George Lucas, and several years later, when he came to England to start casting for Star Wars, he too asked to see Prowse.

'He told me that if I was good enough for Kubrick, I was good enough for him. I didn't have to read for the part. In fact, he gave me a choice of Darth Vader or Chewbacca. I said I wanted to play the villain. And that year was really good for me, because I also got to be the Green Cross Code Man. I asked George if he could give me a week off to promote the new road safety campaign. He ... felt very strongly about road safety, so he said he'd reschedule. Imagine that, a £22m production being rescheduled just for me!'

Then again, if Darth Vader asked me for a week off, I'd be inclined to give it to him. I might even tell him to take a fortnight.

Thomas Simpson

anticipates the return to the galaxy far, far away

ALTHOUGH the second film in George Lucas's new Star Wars trilogy isn't due for release until 2002, the hype for the movie has already begun. In Episode II, many of the key players from the original trilogy and The Phantom Menace (screening on Sky Premier in April) will be joined by the august presence of horror film icon Christopher Lee and former NYPD Blue star Jimmy Smits.

With filming of many of the interior scenes taking place at Fox Studios in Sydney, the producers have been able to call on the wealth of talent available in the southern hemisphere, with many actors familiar to audiences from Farscape, Hercules, Xena and The Matrix appearing.

There are some who won't return – Terence Stamp told GMTV that 'they couldn't afford me again' – while Anakin Skywalker is played by newcomer Hayden Christensen.

The as yet untitled film is set ten years after The Phantom Menace (making it 22 years before the original

The saga continues

Star Wars), and centres on the love affair between Anakin Skywalker and Queen Amidala. But don't expect it to be a mushy love story. Just as The Empire Strikes Back featured Han Solo and Princess Leia's relationship at its core, but with major dramatic developments going on around it, so Episode II will see the Clone Wars raging across the galaxy.

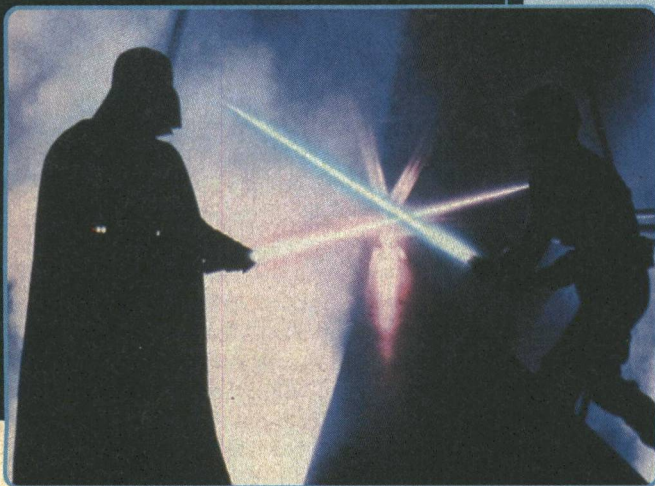

'It's adventurous, it's romantic, it's exciting, it's scary,' Samuel L Jackson explained recently. 'And I get some very cool saber fights.'

Of course, Anakin Skywalker eventually becomes the evil Darth Vader, and Episodes II and III (the latter due for release in 2005) chart his seduction by the Dark Side of the Force.

'Episode III will probably be the darkest of all,' George Lucas has warned. 'I can't take a story that's basically very dark and make it happy. Because it's not.'

The infamous Jar Jar Binks is also back. Not popular with many, the computer-generated creature is an important part of Lucas's vision, although there have been promises that he will not be as irritating this time.

ABOUT STAR WARS

landed the part. George Lucas had worked with Ford on his 1973 film American Graffiti.

4 Sets for The Phantom Menace were built only as high as the tops of the actors' heads; computer graphics filled in the rest. But Liam Neeson was so tall that he cost the set crew an extra $150,000 in construction.

5 The primitive warrior tribe at the end of Return of the Jedi were originally supposed to be Wookiees. But the decision was made to go 'cute' and hence, the Ewoks were created.

Episode II: Familiarity makes the heart grow fonder

IN THE fifth instalment of George Lucas's epic Star Wars series, old favourites Anthony Daniels as C-3PO, Kenny Baker as R2-D2, and Frank Oz, who voices Yoda, will all return.

Ian McDiarmid, Samuel L Jackson, Ewan McGregor and Natalie Portman (right) from The Phantom Menace are also on board for Episode II.

It's a funny old game

The deliciously ludicrous talk of Ron Manager didn't die with The Fast Show after all. Paul Whitehouse tells Nick Griffiths about his new venture for Sky One, Jumpers for Goalposts

SMALL boys in the park, jumpers for goalposts – enduring catchphrase, isn't it? Happily so, because Sky One viewers are going to be hearing a lot more of it.

Fans of BBC2's The Fast Show will already know of Ron Manager, Paul Whitehouse's old-school football pundit, whose train of thought so rarely reaches its destination. Incredibly, Manager, the blithering if well-meaning fool, is now team captain opposite Tommy Stein in Sky One's new football panel quiz show Jumpers for Goalposts. A case of: The Fast Show is dead, long live The Fast Show.

The character is based loosely, says Whitehouse, on 1960s football manager Alec Stock. 'He had that early academy-of-football type of speech that Alf Ramsey had when one wasn't supposed to be a cockney. As far as I remember, he would always answer a question with a question. So they'd ask, "What did you think of the game?"' Whitehouse becomes Ron Manager: "Hohoo, you know? First half, wasn't I? But soccer, you know? Hmm? Let's put the bunting up. Winston Churchill, you know? Never in the field of human ..." and he'd be off. Obviously, we took Ron into realms of madness that Alec Stock didn't go to.'

Jumpers for Goalposts finds Whitehouse in character as Manager, reunited with Fast Show sketch colleagues Mark Williams, as Scottish hardman Tommy Stein, and Simon Day, as host Clive Graham. Each week, Stein and Manager's quiz teams will comprise a pair of footballers or celebrities apiece. It made sense to take the show to Sky because of the Premiership contacts.

'It sums up what football is when you're a kid. I much preferred jumpers for goalposts'

Several footballing stars will be appearing, both on the panels and in quickie sketches peppered throughout the show. Expect, for instance, At Home With ... Dwight Yorke and Robbie Savage (separately, you understand); Interesting Talents with Gary Speed and David Batty; and Where Are They Now? on such hoary heroes as Martin Chivers and Alan Clarke.

Jumpers for Goalposts also features excerpts from books written by footballers, read by the likes of Simon Le Bon, Milo from The Tweenies and MC Hammer.

Contacts book aside, there is a risk involved in The Fast Show man taking his character to Sky One. The network is still relatively new to own-brand original comedy, and such programmes as Harry Enfield's Brand Spanking New Show, Baddiel's Syndrome and Time Gentlemen Please have not garnered the exposure they could have managed on terrestrial.

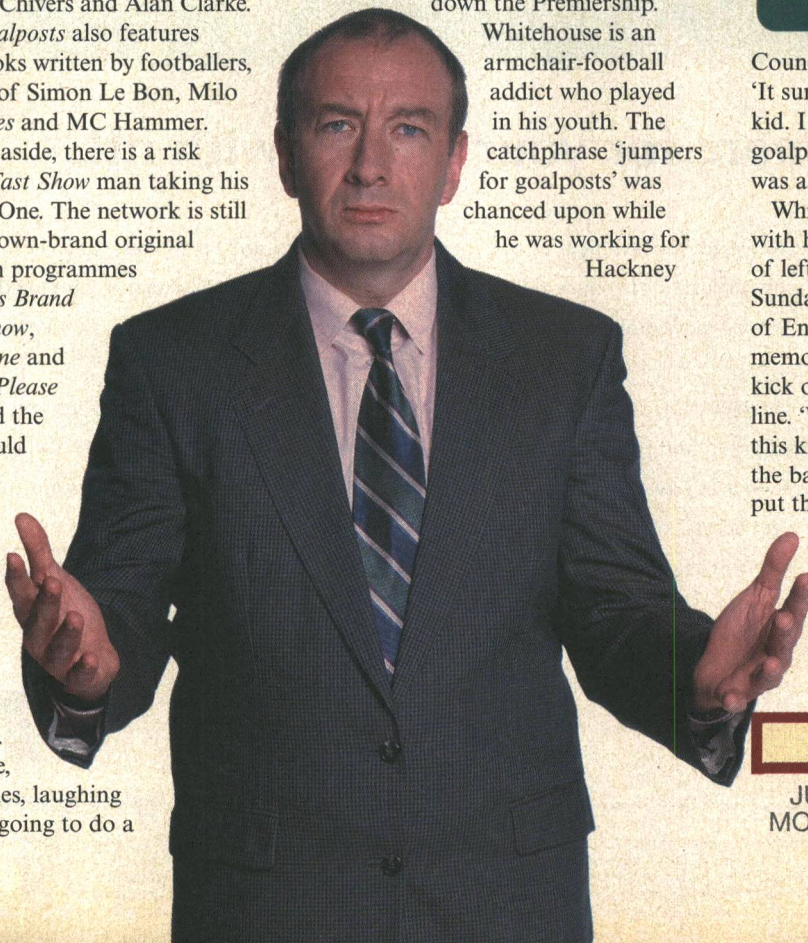

Did Whitehouse speak to comedy chum Enfield about the move? 'Have I spoken to Harry? Em, yeah. Let's leave it there, shall we?' he replies, laughing loudly. 'If you're going to do a football quiz show and you want to exploit as much of the Premiership as you can, then you have to go to Sky. And it's lucrative, I'd be a liar if I said it wasn't. I know we're going to have a laugh doing it and, hopefully, that will reflect in the programme. We're not saying, "Look at this marvellous work, this is the way forward."

Equally risky would be suggesting that a show starring Paul Whitehouse featuring already popular Fast Show characters, in a proven format, might not be a success. The sketches feature, for instance, Ron Manager's Top Tips: The Pass, The Header, Handball ... that sort of thing. And little public information films: 'If you're going to drink and drive at Christmas, for heaven's sake don't drive faster than 50 miles per hour. And undo your seatbelt - you'll want to wriggle free in the event of a crash.' Feel that warm glow of recognition already? Know also that Whitehouse's latest BBC2 show is currently at editing stage. Happiness is a comedy drama starring the likes of Fiona Allen (Smack the Pony), stand-up 'comedy potter' Johnny Vegas, and Whitehouse himself as the voice of a successful animated bear. 'Happiness: can we achieve it or shouldn't we even bother trying? It's about a bunch of fortysomething people. I'm very proud of it.'

When the 13 episodes of Jumpers for Goalposts have been filmed, Paul Whitehouse plans to 'take stock'. A Fast Show film, languishing in the Possibly Pending file, may then take shape. Failing that, he can always lounge and watch his team, Spurs, slide further down the Premiership. Whitehouse is an armchair-football addict who played in his youth. The catchphrase 'jumpers for goalposts' was chanced upon while he was working for Hackney

The World According to Ron Manager

By Paul Whitehouse

« DAVE BECKHAM

The floppy mop gone. The Brylcreem contract gone. Does he gel any more? No. The IQ struggling to register but can put a ball on a sixpence, isn't it? Marvellous. Lovely touch, hmm? One for the ladies.

DAVE GINOLA »

The floppy mop still there. The L'Oreal contract still in place. Marvellous. Lovely pecs, well-defined abs. Lovely touch. One for the ladies.

« DAVE VAN DAY

The male half (I think) of Eighties pop sensation Dollar, wasn't he? Ooh the highlights, the sunbed tan, the hit, those far off days when Maggie ruled. One for the ladies.

DAVE LEE ROTH »

Wild frontman of rock sensation Van Halen. They might as well Jump, isn't it? Marvellous. Not a lot of use in the blood and thunder of an FA cup tie, probably. Once again, one for the ladies.

Council, acting the goat with a workmate. 'It sums up what football is when you're a kid. I much preferred jumpers for goalposts than proper goalposts. It was always much more dramatic.'

Whitehouse used to practise ball skills with his left foot, to exploit the dearth of left-sided players, and made it into Sunday League outfit Southbury Rangers of Enfield. For Whitehouse, though, no memories of that spectacular overhead kick or the lobbed goal from the halfway line. 'We were playing over this field and this kid on the opposing side was rolling the ball about with his foot. Eventually, he put the cross in and I rose majestically to meet it. Bang. I was very pleased with myself. And he'd put dog muck all over the ball. That was my crowning glory. Literally.'

'I literally fought for this role'

Since leaving behind his popular role in ER, George Clooney has established himself as one of Hollywood's biggest stars. But, as the actor admits to Lawrie Masterson, he was not too proud to beg for his role in the Gulf War film Three Kings

FOR A MAN who has appeared in two big movies about war, The Thin Red Line, in which he had a cameo, and this month's premiere of Three Kings, George Clooney obviously believes in the adage about the pen being mightier than the sword. When the 39-year-old former ER star first read the script of Three Kings, he immediately sat down and composed a letter to director David O Russell, pleading for the leading role of seen-it-all military man Sgt Major Archie Gates.

'I literally fought for this role, chased [Russell] everywhere, chased him to New York,' Clooney says. 'Then I sent him letters saying, "I know I buried the Batman franchise and there's no reason for you to give me this part, but ..."'

'This part was originally written for Clint Eastwood. Then I had to wait for guys like Mel Gibson and Nic Cage to pass on it. I actually took another job and then that fell through and this came back, so it was a long haul to get it.'

Three weeks before he was due to start filming Three Kings, Clooney found himself writing letters again.

Because of the sensitive subject matter of the movie, which is set at the end of the Gulf War, the then co-chairman of Warner Bros., Terry Semel, decided to pull the plug on the project, at least temporarily. It was late 1998 and the American embassies in Kenya and Tanzania had been bombed, resulting in the loss of more than 200 lives.

'I had a long, long meeting with Terry Semel and he basically said, "I think you are in danger, we are in danger. I think you should walk away and we should pull the plug,"' Clooney recalls. 'It was just the climate, you know?'

'I went off to the Venice Film Festival, and then I wrote Terry a letter and said, "I don't think I'm in danger, but I understand if you think you're putting your company and all the people you employ in danger. But my feeling is if we are still doing art, then you have to make this now." To Terry's credit he took $45m of his company's money and made this film, and this isn't a typical studio film.'

Three Kings stars Clooney, Mark Wahlberg, Ice Cube and Spike Jonze – now better known as the director of Being John Malkovich, which also plays on Front Row this month – as American soldiers who plan to steal a huge cache of pilfered Kuwaiti gold, reputedly hidden somewhere near their desert base in Iraq.

But when they arrive at the site they find Saddam Hussein's troops more concerned about persecuting civilians than protecting the fortune. Do they take the money and run, or risk their lives escorting the civilians over the border into Iran?

Clooney says he was against the Gulf War. 'My feelings were along the lines of, yes, Hussein's a bad guy and needs to be stopped, but there were questions about other places like Afghanistan and people like [former Chilean dictator Augusto] Pinochet. Where do we draw the line about who we defend and who we don't and, more importantly, why don't we let sanctions try to work first before we start bombing people?'

'You know, this movie isn't a history lesson. If it makes people ask questions, great, but this is a made-up story.'

'I sent [the director] letters saying, "I know I buried the Batman franchise and there's no reason for you to give me this part, but ..."'

The miracle mile

Tom Hanks is no stranger to emotionally draining roles. But, he admits to Lawrie Masterson, he found the best way of coping with the demands of death row drama The Green Mile was by laughing

MOST of the film adaptation of horror master Stephen King's novel The Green Mile is set on death row in a bleak US prison during the Depression, hardly a place for levity.

So, if you're wondering what a cast led by double Oscar-winner Tom Hanks did during their down time, it might come as a surprise to know that laughing was at the top of their list.

'We had to joke to break the tension,' says Hanks, who scooped a Golden Globe Award for his performance in the recent Cast Away. 'There were days when we would have just gone stark raving nuts. There was a lot of laughter because if there had not been we would have just buckled under the pressure.'

'Essentially, it was just one set that was a big, L-shaped thing and it wasn't a pretty place to go day in and day out, so I think we ended up as actors protecting our sanity in the same way our characters did.'

After a modest start to his career in a sitcom called Bosom Buddies, Hanks, 44, is now easily one of Hollywood's foremost and most bankable actors.

He won his Oscars back-to-back for Philadelphia and Forrest Gump (1993 and 1994), has starred in other blockbusters including Sleepless In Seattle, Apollo 13 and Saving Private Ryan, was the voice of Woody in the Toy Story movies and is an Emmy Award-winning producer of the TV series From the Earth to the Moon.

In The Green Mile, Hanks plays prison guard Paul Edgecomb who, while he treats his inmates humanely, is also capable of 'not only snapping a man's wrist when he has to, but also wrestling him to the ground.'

'I made a choice, essentially, to fill out the uniform as much as a guy like me can,' Hanks says of Edgecomb's beefy appearance. 'I'm no real chameleon. I don't necessarily disappear into these roles, but I can add to them. I'm not the type of guy who stays in character all day long, because how do you talk to your kids on the phone when they get home from school and stuff?'

Edgecomb's life changes forever with the arrival on death row of convicted child killer John Coffey (Oscar nominee Michael Clarke Duncan), a massive African-American man possessed of strange healing powers.

Without giving anything away, the movie includes three executions by electric chair, which, in the Stephen King tradition, are macabre and somewhat harrowing.

'The first time we did it we were all in that position as actors where ... we pretend to do very unusual things - sometimes flying in a rocketship to the moon, other times storming a historic beach,' Hanks says. 'This time we were pretending to watch somebody die by having electricity passed through their body. It evokes no small amount of terror and horror.'

Surprisingly, in liberal Hollywood, filming the scenes did not change Hanks's personal stand on capital punishment. 'I can't believe that there are crimes in society that would not warrant the death penalty,' he says. 'Let's not pretend there aren't things people do that don't warrant that brand of justice.'

'It's not retribution. It's not a precaution. It's justice. That's what I believe.'

Spotlight on Russell Crowe

While he can convince in lighter fare, such as the warm-hearted sports comedy Mystery, Alaska, Russell Crowe is most impressive in intense dramatic roles and seems to have cornered the market in tortured men. In the period crime thriller LA Confidential, Crowe brought an unpredictability and menace to maverick cop Bud White. In this month's gripping factual drama, The Insider, meanwhile, he copes with the responsibility of playing a real person (wronged former tobacco scientist Jeffrey Wigand) with great confidence. His Wigand is a haunted, troubled and not always sympathetic man, and the performance earned the actor an Oscar nomination.

An epic undertaking

KIM NEWMAN ON ...
BEN-HUR

Now that Gladiator has breathed new life into the sword-and-sandal epic, it's time to reassess the granddaddy of the genre, Ben-Hur

WILLIAM WYLER'S Ben-Hur (1959) pulled off that rare feat of scooping both the Top Grosser of the Year title and the Best Picture Academy Award. Its clutch of other Oscars set a record (twelve nominations, eleven wins) unequalled until Titanic, with Charlton Heston's prestige Best Actor statuette one-upping the James Cameron movie's failure to scoop any of the performing gongs. Ben-Hur also won Director, Supporting Actor (Hugh Griffith), Cinematography (Robert Surtees), Score (Miklos Rosza), Visual Effects, Art Direction, Sound, Editing and Costume Design. James Van Heusen and Sammy Cahn, Best Song winners that year for High Hopes, said they were relieved Ben-Hur didn't have a title song or it would have won that, too!

The only category in which the film was nominated but didn't win was Adapted Screenplay — reflecting a controversy over the solo credit for Karl Tunberg. Christopher Fry, Maxwell Anderson, Gore Vidal and SN Behrman had done substantial work on the script. Despite all this acclaim, it's a movie best remembered for a snappy one-line put-down review that has a lot of truth ('Loved Ben ... Hated Hur').

A remake of the 1925 silent epic based on the 1880 novel by General Lew Wallace, Ben-Hur was one of a run of spectaculars that were huge at the box office in the 1950s. Following Quo Vadis, The Robe and The Ten Commandments, Ben-Hur was perceived as the epic to end them all. Fans flocked to see the Roman sea battle and amazing chariot race (clearly the inspiration for the pod race of Star Wars: Episode One — The Phantom Menace), just as audiences queued up for last year's genre-reviving epic Gladiator. All this just goes to show that spectacles of death in the arena are as much of a box office draw in the modern era as they were in the days of the Caesars.

The key to the 'Loved Ben ... Hated Hur' crack is Wyler's too-serious adoption of Cecil B DeMille's theory that the Biblical spectacle allowed audiences to enjoy sex and violence because the wrath of God descended upon the unrighteous at the end. A more sophisticated film-maker than DeMille, Wyler thought it wasn't enough to bring the temple down on the baddies, and so the simple story of Judah Ben-Hur, the Jewish nobleman betrayed and enslaved by his treacherous Roman best friend, Messala (Stephen Boyd), moves from one action set-piece to the next via inspiring encounters with Christ (seen only from behind) that allow Heston to wrestle with religion and his conscience.

The sword-and-sandal epics that play best these days, like Spartacus and Gladiator, are the ones with the least sermonising and the most action. Still, as Chuck and Boyd glare over the reins of their chariots it dawns on you that no matter how much you might hate Hur, you can't help but love Ben.

BRIAN MURPHY

What's your favourite film?

Laurel and Hardy feature highly in my movie collection. I always hoped some of their magic would rub off on me. Way Out West is one of my favourites. I love that bit when they launch into a dance. It's such a magic moment.

Who's your favourite movie actor?

I love Edward G Robinson and James Cagney. Cagney could be a villain or he could do musicals like Yankee Doodle Dandy.

What's your first movie memory?

Probably something with Laurel and Hardy. I used to go the cinema on Saturday mornings for sixpence. I loved it. I still do. There's something very special about a darkened room and the lights coming from the screen.

What's your favourite movie genre?

If I'm watching the box, it's usually a thriller. It's what I relax to. I love comedy, but I don't find they make comedies like they used to. There are some exceptions. I watched Meet the Parents the other day, which was very funny. But we don't have the same film clowns that we had 30 years ago.

What film would you liked to have been in?

Any Western and any Hitchcock. I've always wanted to play a villain. I always wanted to be Charles Laughton or Edward G Robinson. I'm not saying I'd have been any good playing their parts, but I would have liked to have done it.

Brian Murphy, best known for his role as George Roper in George and Mildred, is currently touring in a national theatre production of Neil Simon's comedy The Sunshine Boys.

Swede and lowdown

Sven-Göran Eriksson faces up to his first World Cup match in charge of England.

Words: Luke Nicoli

THE NEW England coach, Sven-Göran Eriksson, has the nation's World Cup 2002 destiny in his hands.

With the critical qualifiers against Finland – live from Anfield on Sky Sports 2 – and Albania looming, Eriksson insists the squad he has assembled has the talent and mettle to put the national team's stuttering qualification bid back on track.

The 53-year-old Swede believes that a fresh, new approach will be important, although not critical, to his plans. 'The number of talented young players we have has not surprised me,' says Eriksson, who was appointed in January on a five-year contract by the FA. 'I had heard about the potential, but to actually see these players in the flesh has been very encouraging. Players like Joe Cole, Ashley Cole and Steven Gerrard are the future of English football and I'm sure they have big careers ahead of them. But I don't think age is the most important thing; it's how good the player is. To just have the team at 20 or 22 years of age would be nice – but it could be dangerous, too, in international games.'

His sentiments will be music to the ears of old-timers Martin Keown, David Seaman, Graeme Le Saux and Dennis Wise, whose international futures had hung in the balance. But, with two critical games forthcoming, experienced heads will be of paramount importance. Maximum points from both games are a must if England are to qualify, as Eriksson is well aware. 'The talking will soon stop as we prepare for both matches, but I believe that we will win them and go on to qualify,' is his bold assessment. 'I must remain positive because there are still six games to play. Then we can try to win the tournament itself, which is not out of our reach. It's difficult, but not impossible.'

A positive declaration, indeed, but for a man brought up on a diet of success at IFK Gothenburg, Benfica, Roma, Sampdoria and Lazio, it's a challenge certainly within his capabilities.

'I know it's a very important and difficult job, a big job and a fantastic one, but I am looking forward to the challenge. The standard of player I have worked with throughout my career should ensure the step-up is not too daunting.

I have managed Champions League sides, which is a good indication of the standard I will face.

'If players are playing well for their club sides then they will be given a chance,' adds Eriksson, who is not too proud to ask for advice – should he need it.

'I have spoken to the different managers about the game in general and I've received advice from them on certain players and systems,' he adds. 'It's been important to establish good relationships with the club managers and both myself and assistant Tord Grip have been welcomed everywhere we've been. Some of them might not have wanted me initially, but I have had no problems and you can't be too proud to listen to these people. I have learnt a great deal.'

He has also consulted with past England managers. 'Their advice has been very important, as they know what I will be faced with,' he says.

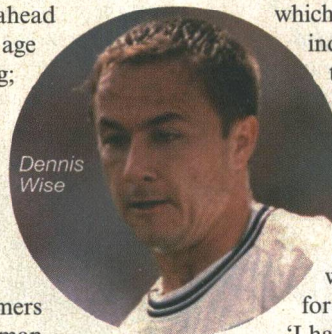

'I know that the press are not kind on the England manager should results not go his way, and being a Swede will ensure that they will try to hang me. But they would do that if I was English anyway, so I won't let it bother me. Not that failure is on my agenda. This is a new start for England and I'm confident it will be a successful one.'

England's golden boot Jonny Wilkinson tells Simon Johnson he is determined to get his kicks against Scotland

Mark Durden-Smith says: 'Jonny [Wilkinson] is the man they [Scotland] fear'

ENGLAND fly-half Jonny Wilkinson is looking forward to putting things right against Scotland when they meet at Twickenham in their Calcutta Cup clash in the Six Nations Championship.

Last season, Scotland caused a major upset when they beat England 19-13 at Murrayfield and prevented their old enemy winning the Grand Slam in the process.

England still won the championship, having emerged victoriously from the previous four games, but Wilkinson is determined to go one better this year.

The Newcastle Falcons star said: 'I am desperate to win the Grand Slam. There is a great degree of expectation upon us, and we will be the favourites to win.'

But the 21-year-old is fully aware of Scotland's ability to ruin his dream once again.

There is nothing Scotland like more than to spoil England's party, and last year was not the first time they stood in the way of English success.

The infamous match-up at Murrayfield in 1990 also resulted in a surprise 13-7 Scotland victory, depriving England of another Grand Slam, and Wilkinson insists his team won't be guilty of taking the Scots lightly.

He says: 'There is no danger of complacency from us, especially after what happened last year.'

'A great deal of effort goes into the championships, and we were disappointed when we lost the chance to win the Grand Slam.'

'There is a good tradition and strong rivalry between Scotland and ourselves. I used to watch the games on the television myself, and one always thinks back to that game in 1990.'

'We all see it as a big game on the rugby calendar. I will not be going into the game taking victory for granted, but appreciating just what exactly I'm taking part in.'

In last year's defeat, Scotland targeted Wilkinson and scrum-half Matt Dawson and were able to stifle England's creativity. But Wilkinson believes he will be better prepared this time. 'I have learnt from the experience of last year and will use the knowledge to my advantage,' he adds.

'But it is important not to worry about what they can do all the time, and to concentrate on what I can do.'

Watching from the safety of the Sky Sports studio at Twickenham will be presenter Mark Durden-Smith.

He believes that although England start the game rightly as favourites, Scotland have the ability to spring a surprise.

Durden-Smith says: 'England ought to be wary of the Scots because I believe the Calcutta Cup won't be the one-sided affair many people are expecting.'

'Scotland have Scott Murray in the line-out who can cause mayhem and deprive England of quality ball.'

'The English are winning games because they are dominating possession, but they are not making full use of it and scoring the tries they should be.'

'If Murray succeeds in the line-out, then the Scots have players like Kenny Logan and John Leslie in the backs to take advantage.'

But Durden-Smith believes Wilkinson, who has already scored over 300 points for his country, will prove the difference between the two sides.

He adds: 'Jonny is the man they fear. England have got a man on their side who can be relied upon to kick all their penalties.'

'They might not be satisfied by winning games with the boot and would prefer to win by scoring tries, but he is a luxury most sides don't have, and with a weapon like that you are going to use it.'

'He will be targeted by Scotland, but you get the impression he has been learning his lessons and will be ready for it.'

Scotland may not have won at Twickenham since 1983, but they are just the sort of team that enjoys upsetting the odds. Just ask England.

The ultimate Seventies superdude

Forget Samuel L Jackson. There is only one Shaft, and that is the one played by quintessential Seventies superdude Richard Roundtree. The former model portrayed 'black private dick' John Shaft in three hard-hitting crime thrillers and a TV series featuring the ghetto gumshoe created by novelist Ernest Tidyman. Clad in only the funkier threads (rollneck sweater topped by a chocolate-coloured leather coat – an outfit he alternates with an altogether tougher black leather ensemble), this cat is so cool he keeps a gun in his fridge. Shaft might be 'a sex machine to all the chicks', but he spells a whole lot of trouble for the mobsters who kidnapped his crooked client's teenage daughter. He has grudgingly accepted an assignment from Harlem crime kingpin Bumpy Jonas (played by Moses Gunn) to find her. Along the way, Shaft enlists the services of a black militant group to help him rescue Marcy, thus setting the stage for a suspenseful climactic sequence in which he abseils down the side of an apartment block, armed with a Molotov cocktail, and swings through a window to get the girl. Melvin Van Peebles's ground-breaking independent production Sweet Sweetback's Baadasssss Song is usually cited as the first of the so-called blaxploitation movies, but Shaft could more correctly be awarded that honour; Sweetback is a fractured, thoughtful art movie while Shaft, like most films in this genre, is unashamed of its escapist action intentions. Directed by Gordon Parks, this is a defiantly raw film. Cinematographer Urs Furrer's restless camera, when it's not peering through railings or lurking behind overflowing garbage pails, struts along the litter-strewn sidewalks in perfect rhythm to Isaac Hayes's Oscar-winning theme song. The movie is playing in TCM's 31 Days of Oscar Season.

Kirsty – a tribute

The music world was robbed of a great talent last December, when Kirsty MacColl, one of Britain's finest singer-songwriters was killed in a tragic boating accident while holidaying in Mexico. MacColl's legacy lives on in a fine body of work, which is celebrated this month in VH1 to One: Kirsty MacColl. While she rightfully earned acclaim for her own brilliant compositions, such as the quirky slice of life There's a Guy Works Down the Chip Shop (Swears He's Elvis), MacColl will probably be best remembered for her collaboration with the Pogues on the Christmas classic Fairytale of New York.

Murder in the dark

Jack the Ripper. Few names in history are as instantly recognisable and fewer still conjure such vivid images: dark alleys, gaslights, fog, and not forgetting the knife-wielding, faceless killer himself. Claiming the lives of five prostitutes in East London during the autumn of 1888, the case remains one of the most famous unsolved crimes in English history.

A combination of the grisly nature of the murders, anonymity of the killer and the subsequent media attention has retained our fascination. High profile from the start, the press ensured the Ripper made headlines daily, turning a ten-week reign of terror into a whodunit legend. Journalists were even accused of beefing up the case with letters sent to the police under the killer's guise. Largely forgotten until after World War 1, cult-like interest didn't ensue until the 1950s, egged on by the first Ripper film – a 1959 black-and-white offering which saw a US policeman come to Scotland Yard's aid. A slew of films followed, the most intriguing take on the tale being Time after Time, in which novelist HG Wells (Malcolm McDowell) pursues the Ripper (David Warner) into 20th-century San Francisco.

The past few years have seen more information garnered and serious research conducted than at any other time since the case closed more than 100 years ago. The Ripper's identity has always been fiercely debated among experts, and various theories have linked the Freemasons, the Royal Family and even author Lewis Carroll with the case. Would-be Ripperologists should take note of the latest findings in The Hunt for Jack the Ripper, premiering this week as part of a new series, Public Enemy Number One.

LIVE LEEDS UNITED V MANCHESTER UNITED SKY SPORTS 1 11.00AM

After finishing in third place in 2000, Leeds United fans thought that their team was destined to enter the elite of the Premier League. However, this season has proved something of a disappointment for the Elland Road men, and this morning they have to face a Manchester United team on the cusp of their seventh title in eight seasons. The home team will look to strikers such as Robbie Keane (pictured, left) to penetrate a United defence which includes Mikael Silvestre (pictured, right).

LIVE FORD SUPER SUNDAY: IPSWICH TOWN V BRADFORD CITY SKY SPORTS 1 3.00PM

Struggling Bradford travel to Portman Road desperate for any points to lift them out of the relegation zone, but it may already be too late. At the other end of the table, Ipswich have had a remarkable season, baffling all the pre-season pundits. While former Huddersfield striker Marcus Stewart (pictured, left) has been one of Town's stars this season, Bradford's Dean Windass (pictured, right) - last season's top scorer for the club - will be hoping to be on target.

LOVE STARS

BY MARGIE THILLART

MARCH BIRTHDAYS

14th Michael Caine 17th Caroline Corr
21st Gary Oldman 25th Sarah Jessica Parker
29th Lucy Lawless 31st Ewan McGregor

Sensational ★★★ Stimulating ★★ Satisfactory ★

Aries

21 March-20 April ★★
LIFE is what you make it this month, so if you're dissatisfied start making changes now. A little effort could indeed turn the tide in your favour, especially if the problem is as simple as a relationship suffering from emotional neglect.

Libra

24 September-23 October ★★
AS YOU hurtle from one drama to another, you will crave peace and bend over backwards to resolve problems. The stars suggest it is more likely the issues that arise this month will concern the lives of others rather than your own.

Taurus

21 April-21 May ★★
WITH Venus stationary, you may be complacent about your love life and ignore the needs of your partner. You will tend to exist in a dream world this month, creating fantasies and ignoring the practical realities of your daily existence.

Scorpio

24 October-22 November ★★
YOUR mood may be subjective and you will see situations from your own slanted perspective. Ethereal energy has you living in a fantasy world. While this may protect you from harm, it could have a negative effect on close relationships.

Gemini

22 May-21 June ★
WITH both sides of your twin personality highlighted, you will need someone who can keep up with your fluctuating moods. Even the most understanding loved ones can lose patience when you flit from one idea or plan to another.

Sagittarius

23 November-22 December ★★
MACHO Mars packs a powerful punch and you will refuse to take situations lying down. Instead, you are likely to say what you think and demand equality at all times. Remember to stop making idle threats or you will lose your credibility.

Cancer

22 June-23 July ★★
YOU could slip into a pattern of self-destruction if you are not careful. Rather than obsessing about a particular person or issue, cut yourself and others some slack by accepting that you cannot always be in complete control.

Capricorn

21 January-19 February ★★
THOSE who scratch the surface will find a tender heart lurks beneath your serious exterior. Sun in malleable Pisces makes you a soft touch and loving companion this month. But you should draw the line at being a martyr to the cause.

Leo

24 July-23 August ★
IN AN ideal world you would be loved and appreciated by everyone, but not all is perfect this month. Someone you love may rebel and project blame onto you, or you will be saddened by the break-up of a once happy relationship.

Aquarius

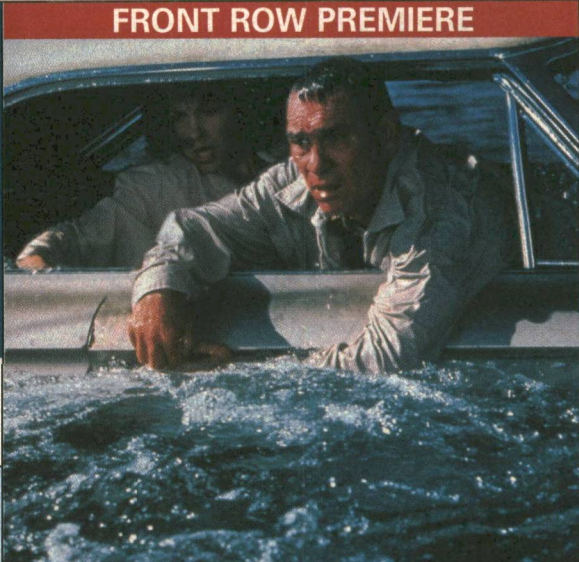

21 January-19 February ★★
SUBTLETY may not be a strong point with your sign, but you know how to grab attention and get your message across. If you have been separated from someone you love or feel emotionally neglected, now is the time to argue your case.

Virgo

24 August-23 September ★★
YOU may have the best interests of others at heart, but not everyone actually appreciates your selflessness. Often the unsung hero of the zodiac, your kind deeds will draw attention from at least one grateful friend or relative.

Pisces

20 February-20 March ★★
AN AURA of mystery surrounding your sign adds to the allure and helps revive your love life. You relate best to gentle, artistic people, so will be thrilled when someone sensitive to your feelings crosses your path and expresses interest.

Spike Lee's biopic of the legendary American black leader (played by Denzel Washington) was controversial when it was released, but the story of a minister's son, who converts to Islam after life as a gangster and ultimately dies a Muslim martyr, is fascinating.

LIVE FORD SCOTTISH FOOTBALL: KILMARNOCK V RANGERS SKY SPORTS 3 7.00PM

The growing list of internationals joining the Scottish Premier League is making for some exciting football, and Rangers are no exception. The Gers - with their record signing, Norwegian international Tore Andre Flo (pictured) - travel to Kilmarnock, aiming to avenge their 3-0 defeat back in October. Killie have already suffered heavily at the hands of one half of Glasgow - a 6-0 drubbing by Celtic in January - and need the points if they are to stay in contention for a European spot.

GET FRESH WITH A CHROME JUICER

From £39.95*

THE JOY OF JUICING is available to you in the shape of this beautifully designed juicer. Compact and practical as well as aesthetically pleasing, it puts those bulky, overly complicated, hard-to-clean electronic juicers to shame. Working on the age-old principle of squashing the fruit into submission, it extracts every drop of juice possible, and the only power it requires is the pressure that you yourself apply when you push down on the handle. The resulting fresh fruit juice flows into the stainless steel cup, while all peel and pith is caught in the steel filter, ready to be thrown away. Measuring 18in in height, the juicer is made of durable, sturdy chrome, which can be brought back to its shining best with the wipe of a cloth. On sale in the shops for as much as £70.00, it's available to our readers for the very juicy price of just £39.95*. To order, simply complete the coupon below and send it to Cable Guide, Juicer Offer, PO Box 75, Rochester, Kent ME1 2DB. Or call the order hotline on 0870 747 2246.

LIVE TEST CRICKET: SRI LANKA V ENGLAND - SECOND TEST SKY SPORTS 2 6.00AM, 7.00AM, 4.15AM

After England's surprising performance against the super spinners of Pakistan, the critics won't be so keen to shout down their chances against Sri Lanka. Conditions at the Asgiriya Stadium in Kandy will be perfect for the spin bowlers, and stalwart batsman Michael Atherton (pictured, left) will be tested to the full in any bid to achieve another lengthy stay at the wickets. An important factor in England's success or otherwise will be the batting of Sri Lanka's Marvan Atapattu (pictured, right).

LIVE EURO TOUR GOLF: QATAR MASTERS
SKY SPORTS 1 10.30AM

Rolf Muntz's (pictured) runaway victory at last year's Qatar Masters was indeed a memorable one. For not only was it the 30-year-old's first ever professional victory, but he also became the first Dutch golfer to win a European Tour title, when he finished five strokes ahead of Welshman Ian Woosnam to pocket the 130,000 euros prize money. This year's tournament, which tees off today, is the second PGA European Tour event in a fortnight to be held in the Middle East.

Week 2

Saturday 10th March-Friday 16th March

Time for Oscar

A thrilling interpretation of HG Wells's century-straddling novella, The Time Machine is a richly produced foray into the fantastic by producer-director and special effects innovator George Pal. It's grounded by a forceful performance from Rod Taylor as a brilliant, idealistic scientist who, disillusioned with an age in which science is being increasingly used for destructive ends, has been experimenting in the possibility of movement within the fourth dimension. Pal also tinkers with the film's time-frame by unfolding our hero's brushes with the future in flashback. In the first week of the 20th century, a weary, filthy Taylor bursts into his dining room, where his shocked colleagues have gathered, and recounts his recent experiences on a perilous journey into tomorrow's world aboard the contraption of the title. Taylor explains how five days earlier, New Year's Eve 1899, he tentatively took his first little leaps in time. (A neat conceit, which economically conveys the passage of time, sees the mannequin in the shop window opposite his house discard many season's outfits in speedy stop-motion). He eventually finds himself in the year 802,701, where his relief that Earth has evolved into a lush, green Eden is shattered by his discovery that its inhabitants, the Eloi, are slothful automaton who allow themselves to be slaughtered by a race of subterranean mutants called Morlocks. Although the viewer is always sure of Taylor's safety, since he has survived to tell the tale, Pal still succeeds in generating some genuinely suspenseful moments. The special effects scooped an Oscar. Playing in TCM's 31 Days of Oscar season.

TCM, Friday 16th, 9.00pm

Cruise control

Tom Cruise has proved himself an actor capable of distinguishing himself in complex and demanding dramatic roles as well as unashamed escapist fare. He's effortlessly convincing in action hero mode in the likes of the Mission: Impossible movies, but he's also passionate and capable when confronting troubling emotions in Born on the Fourth of July (Oliver Stone's moving biopic of wheelchair-bound Vietnam vet-turned-anti-war campaigner Ron Kovic) and Stanley Kubrick's steamy psychodrama Eyes Wide Shut. In Paul Thomas Anderson's remarkable ensemble piece Magnolia, Cruise demonstrates further bravery in his choice of roles by tackling a defiantly nasty character in macho self-help guru, Frank T.J. Mackey; it is testament to Cruise's skill that, in his emotionally draining climactic scene, he summons sympathy for such an odious man. Cruise is celebrated on Sky Cinema this weekend in Days of Thunder, Risky Business, Top Gun and The Firm. Sky Cinema, from Saturday 10th, see listings for details

Six of the best

One of the most challenging and enigmatic series in the history of TV, The Prisoner took the Swinging Sixties spy thriller and transformed it into an existential nightmare. And it is as challenging today as when it first infuriated unsuspecting viewers in 1967. The show stars Patrick McGeehan as an agent who, after angrily handing in his resignation, has been kidnapped, stripped of his identity (we know him only as Number 6) and imprisoned in a seemingly inescapable mock idyllic village. With its oppressively odd atmosphere and stories that are open to endless interpretations, this cryptic classic still amazes in the sheer audacity of its invention. Sci-Fi, Thursdays from 15th Action from the Sunshine State as the $3.25m Honda Classic enters its final day at Coral Springs in Florida. Local favourite Dudley Hart (pictured) pulled off an amazing comeback last year to clinch the title and a cheque for over $500,000. The nail-biting finish looked set to go to a play-off, with Kevin Wentworth and JP Hayes looking the likely pair to contest it. But the New York-born 31-year-old recovered a three-shot deficit to win by one shot.

Vicki Butler-Henderson
GIRL RACER

Top Gear does the trick

When magician Paul Daniels relegated Top Gear to the dustbin on Room 101, Vicki Butler-Henderson was driven to reply ...

AS A PRETTY easy-going sort of person, it takes some doing to get my blood boiling. I take most things in my stride and when I make a judgment about somebody or something, I try to look at all the facts first.

But not everyone is like that. A lot of people pass sentence without evaluating the whole picture – and that sends my blood into volcanic eruptions. Especially when they have misguided preconceptions about me, or Top Gear. Then it's personal!

One such man who has done precisely that is Paul Daniels, when the pint-sized magician was a recent guest on the BBC's Room 101. Hosted by comedian Paul Merton, Room 101 involves celebrity guests naming their most hated things and banishing them to Room 101 – the ultimate torture chamber from George Orwell's novel Nineteen Eighty-Four.

Mr Daniels kicked off proceedings by putting Top Gear into his dustbin of dislikes. 'To promote everything only on speed is just pathetic,' quipped the ex-Ferrari driver.

'Have you ever broken the speed limit?' asked Paul Merton. 'Yes,' replied the Bentley owner. He then went on to say that years ago he'd tried to test the manufacturer's claim of his then-car's 150mph top speed. And got caught.

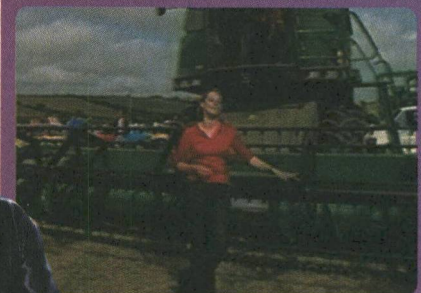

So you're not interested in speed, Mr Daniels? He said he was not in the least bit interested in how long it takes for a car to get to 60mph, but was interested in fuel economy. If that's the case, why doesn't he swap the gas-guzzling Bentley for a diesel city car?

I'm not going to judge that, as I'm not fully aware of the facts, but I am completely aware of the thought processes behind Top Gear.

We test hundreds of models every year from budget-beaters to supercars, and everything in between. We look at all the facts before recommending a model and we give comprehensive, well-researched advice. The Top Gear team tests the handling characteristics of every car and we look at fuel economy, styling, standard equipment, optional extras, running costs, ergonomics, passenger room, build quality – the lot! We do test a car's performance, but it's all done in context: if we're looking at estate cars, we're not going to concentrate on how fast it goes, but rather on how much load space it's got. That's common sense. Which is something, perhaps, that Mr Daniels could do with a bit more of.

Top Gear: 'It's useless,' he concluded on Room 101. Pot, kettle, black, Paul?

LIVE UEFA CHAMPIONS LEAGUE: BAYERN MUNICH V ARSENAL ITV2 5.00PM

Arsène Wenger's Arsenal face their stiffest test yet in their Champions League season. The Gunners travel to Germany to face Group C favourites Bayern Munich at the Olympic Stadium. When the clubs met at Highbury in December, Arsenal had to settle for a 2-2 draw despite taking a first-half 2-0 lead thanks to goals from French international Thierry Henry (pictured, right) and Nwankwo Kanu. Bayern's powerful striker Carsten Jancker (pictured, left) could cause problems for the London side.

When we were kings

When Three Kings was released in cinemas, the trailers gave the impression that this Gulf War film was going to be an explosive, gung-ho affair. But it is not the action adventure you might expect – the film actually takes a somewhat subversive look at modern warfare as it follows the story of a group of American soldiers (George Clooney, Ice Cube and Mark Wahlberg) in Iraq at the end of the conflict in the Gulf. They've discovered a secret Iraqi map disclosing the location of a bunker full of gold and treasure stolen from Kuwait and the plan is to claim the bounty for themselves. But their scheme is not as straightforward as they had anticipated – along the way to appropriating the hidden treasure, they find themselves dealing with disgruntled Iraqi businessmen, (given a very human face), competitive CNN-style reporters fighting their own battles in the 'media war', and rebels and refugees living in bunkers. While there is some violence, there is also a lot of unexpected surrealism and biting satire. Director David O Russell – who made the well-regarded indie films Flirting with Disaster and Spanking the Monkey – catches viewers by surprise with his eccentric style: the film has a grainy washed-out look and the recurring image of a bullet tearing through a man's skin and ripping his organs apart is a shocking one. Think Kelly's Heroes made in the style of Apocalypse Now and you'll have an idea about what to expect from this peculiar offering. The acting is first-rate from the three leads, and quirky Spike Jonze (the music video maker and nutty director of Being John Malkovich) is excellent as redneck Conrad Vig. The film's powerful ending creates a crisis of conscience for our heroes, but Russell doesn't give in to unnecessary sentimentality.

The alternative high

Adrenaline, a hormone secreted by the adrenal glands, can affect your circulation, muscular action and produce feelings of excitement. In other words, it can send your breakfast through you at Porsche-like speeds and lead to varying degrees of euphoria, giddiness, and, most notably, a grin from ear to ear. It's what makes athletes burn through the pain-barrier and racing drivers fearless. Getting hooked on the chemical high is becoming increasingly common, and adrenaline junkies are turning to more extreme, gravity-defying sports. In the process they're inventing new ones, like wakeboarding (surfing with a short board), trebuchet-hurling (using a human catapult) or skysurfing (skydiving with a surfboard). Yearning to fly, 'just like Peter Pan', is the aim of Adrian Nicholas, the star of the first programme of Extreme Lives, a series that follows the astonishing lengths to which people will go for the ultimate buzz. He plans to break the world record free-fall flight, but he won't just be plummeting to the ground at 600mph. Adrian will use a specially designed wing-suit to fly for longer and further. A guaranteed white-knuckle ride for viewers.

The Bromwich project

What the West Midlands derby between Wolverhampton Wanderers and West Bromwich Albion lacks in free-flowing football, it more than makes up for in passion. Visitors West Brom only managed to avoid the drop into the Second Division on last season's final game, so the Baggies weren't exactly bookies' favourites this time round. But, proving their doubters wrong, they have consolidated well under the guidance of boss Gary Megson and are making a committed challenge for a play-off place. Megson came to the Hawthorns during West Brom's darkest period towards the end of last season, and has turned the team around.

The players seem a lot more cohesive and some shrewd acquisitions have injected a much-needed dynamism into their performances. Of these new signings, former Bristol Rovers forward Jason Roberts (right) looks the most impressive, his goal tally standing at an even dozen at the start of last month. The home side, meanwhile, will want to avenge their 1-0 away defeat against West Brom, but the recent managerial upheaval is taking its toll. That said, if anybody could improve Wanderers' fortunes it's the newly installed former Southampton boss Dave Jones.

LIVE FORD SUPER SUNDAY: ASTON VILLA V ARSENAL SKY SPORTS 1 3.00PM

Arsène Wenger's men travel to the West Midlands to meet an inconsistent Aston Villa side. Despite the strike power of players such as Thierry Henry (pictured, right), Arsenal appear to have let any hopes of the title slip away, but they must battle on to assure their place in next season's Champions League. Villa's talented Paul Merson (pictured, left) will want to marshal the midfield but will the Villans be good enough to keep the Gunners' artillery at bay?

OUT OF THIS WORLD

SCI-FI, HORROR & FANTASY

Oh, my Darla

Julie Benz has vamped up Angel with her return as Darla. But there's more to the seductive sire than meets the eye, she tells Thomas Simpson

AS WE sit in a Sunset Boulevard restaurant, Julie Benz says: 'I think Darla is greatly misunderstood.' The actress, whose surprise return marked the end of the first season of Buffy the Vampire Slayer spin-off Angel, has been enjoying her role taunting the vampire this year. 'I believe that she's not innately evil. She does what she has to to survive – and that's kill people.' Hardly a sentiment you expect from a beautiful woman, who, half an hour earlier, was modelling designer Nicole Miller's latest creations.

But Benz doesn't see Darla as amoral. As the second season unfolds, we learn more about Darla and Angel's shared past. 'People say she's so evil, but I don't really view her that way,' she explains. 'She loves Angel like no other. She has not sired another since she kicked him out. There's a reason for that and a reason they were together for 150 years. There's a reason why she didn't sire anyone prior to that – she was waiting for the perfect specimen to come around.' She adds: 'It's a great love, and not just a love between lovers – it's a mother/son love.'

To her, Angel's fight on the side of good, now that his soul has been restored, is something that she just cannot cope with.

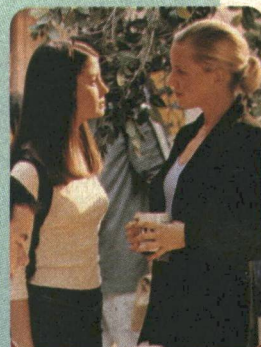

'It's the most horrific thing that could happen. He's her child, her lover, her soul mate in a way, and she's not able to deal with it. If you take the whole vampire aspect out of it, it's a love triangle. Angel tells Darla that she never made him happy, and in her eyes she can't understand that Buffy did. In the seventh episode, she says, "I gave you this gift of eternal life," but he does not see it as a gift.'

Although one of Benz's big breaks was in As Good as It Gets, she is best known for playing the bad girl. 'I've always just wanted to be the girl who's loved,' she moans, jokingly. 'It's just a bizarre twist. Last year, every character I played was either staked, went crazy, electrocuted, or cursed. And to think, I wanted to be America's little sweetheart ...'

Benz, whose character on Roswell died during the first season, loves the whole process of acting, from auditioning to publicity. Despite her appearances on two fantasy shows, science fiction isn't something that she naturally contemplates. 'I don't spend a lot of time wondering if there are aliens out there – I'd rather not know,' she says.

She would rather spend time with her husband, or making public appearances for charity. 'I really believe in giving back to the world,' she says. 'In this business we have the opportunity to put our face to a charity and bring it out to the public. I'm a great supporter of that.'

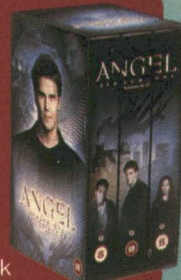

Always the bad girl: Benz as Kathleen Topolsky on Roswell

FORD GOLF USA: BAY HILL INVITATIONAL SKY SPORTS 3 11.00AM

The $3.5m Bay Hill Invitational enters its fourth, and final, day at the Bay Hill Club and Lodge in Orlando, Florida. Last year's event was one of Tiger Woods's (pictured) many triumphs in 2000. The world's top player led from start to finish against a very classy field and eventually won by four shots from Davis Love III to pocket the $540,000 top prize. The scary thing for his opponents is that Tiger is using this prestigious competition as a warm-up for the Masters Tournament next month.

LIVE FORD GOLF USA: PLAYERS' CHAMPIONSHIP SKY SPORTS 2 4.30PM

Hurrah for Hal Sutton (pictured)! Last year, he won the Players Championship at Sawgrass, Florida, despite the presence of Tiger Woods, who seemed unbeatable in 2000. The Ryder Cup stalwart negotiated the many obstacles on the course, including the famous island green at the 17th, plus a late charge from Woods. Scotland's Colin Montgomerie was the best-placed European in a large group in joint third, and he may well lead the foreign challenge again.

	LIVE SUPER LEAGUE: WIGAN WARRIORS V LEEDS RHINOS SKY SPORTS 3 7.30PM Two of rugby league's long-time giant clubs - Wigan and Leeds - have plenty to prove at the JJB Stadium tonight, after their great rivals St Helens set the pace with a victory over Brisbane Broncos in the World Club Challenge in January. Although Leeds - (whose Anthony Farrell is in the centre of the picture) - finished fourth in Super League V, they will be relying on players such as new Kiwi signing Tonie Carroll to help them improve on last season's poor start. The world according to Chris Morris

He may not be a household name, but Chris Morris rates as one of the most subversive and biting brilliant humorists of our time. He first gained notoriety with his anarchic antics on the airwaves, and unsuspecting listeners to his shows on Radio 1 and the now defunct GLR were treated to some sublimely surreal routines and hoax interviews. His Radio 4 series On the Hour, a spoof, hard-hitting news show that also introduced Alan Partridge, eventually made the successful transition to television under the title The Day Today. And that series makes its debut on Play UK this week, with Morris dominating the proceedings as the Paxmanesque anchor. Morris delights in courting controversy: he's been sacked from more radio stations than you'd care to count and was famously suspended from his skilfully self-produced Radio 1 show after suggesting that a well-known (and very alive) politician had passed away. But there's more to Morris than extreme practical jokes, and his insistence on pushing the boundaries of what is acceptable resulted in the creepy, deeply disturbing Radio 1 series Blue Jam and its TV spin-off Jam. With its distorted visuals, weird sound effects and taboo subject matter, Jam made for extremely unsettling viewing. Morris, it seemed, had invented a new style of comedy – a series so ahead of its time that it didn't actually need to be funny. Jam polarised audiences: there were those who hailed Morris as a visionary, while others were appalled at the shocking material. Maybe the world just isn't ready for him. In this respect, Morris's brand of anti-comedy on Jam calls to mind the work of the late Andy Kaufman. A mad, comic genius, and a star of TV's Taxi, Kaufman insisted on challenging audiences with routines that were so unfunny, they transcended the accepted rules of comedy and almost attained the status of high art. It's doubtful whether Morris will earn the acclaim of Kaufman, who was recently celebrated in the biopic Man on the Moon, but his influence is undeniable on the likes of The 11 O'Clock Show and Ali G. Play UK, Wednesdays from 28th, see listings for details

What a Jackass

With a title like Jackass, this collection of outrageous and questionable stunts certainly doesn't pull any punches. Hitting the UK this month, it's hosted by Johnny Knoxville, a comic writer and actor, who claims his training in the art of the prank began at the age of four, when his father taught him to punch male guests in the groin. Expect Johnny and his unhinged team to play with horse manure, joust on BMX bikes, run around the streets naked, stand inside portaloos as they're turned upside down, and try to buy hacksaws dressed as padlocked convicts. Sounding like nothing more than stagnight-style antics, it's suitably billed as puerile and distasteful, but despite all the wincing and squirming, MTV promises there'll be laughs aplenty. Think Beadle's About and your misgivings may be understandable, but the show must have something to justify its accolade 'most watched show on US Cable TV in the 12-34-year-old age bracket'. Much of its success is no doubt due to talented co-producer Spike Jonze (director of Being John Malkovich). The two first worked together while Knoxville was testing protective clothing for a skateboard magazine. Jonze filmed the tests and produced a short compilation, a kind of greatest hits, which made the Hollywood rounds in much the same way that Trey Parker and Matt Stone circulated early versions of South Park. And similarly, it wasn't long before they went on to bigger and better things.

FILM

Saving Private Ryan
Sky Premier 9.00pm
Steven Spielberg's epic look at the horrors of war, following the efforts of a team of US soldiers sent to the front line to find a soldier and return him home. A highly unlikely premise, but nevertheless a brilliantly-crafted film – especially the powerful opening battle sequence.

LIVE WTA TOURNAMENT IN MIAMI BRITISH EUROSPORT 5.30PM

The world of women's tennis has rarely been as competitive as it is now. Most of the talk this week at the highly prestigious $2.7m Ericsson Open in Miami, Florida - now in its 17th year - will probably be of a revitalised Jennifer Capriati, who won the Australian Open in January, and is once again a major contender on the WTA Tour. But the defending champion Martina Hingis (pictured) - whom Capriati beat in the Melbourne final - will not give up her title without a fight.

The Bose® Wave® radio/CD. When we designed the Wave radio/CD, we spent over a year making it one of the smallest, most compact systems available. One that fits almost anywhere. But despite all that, all anyone seems to talk about is how lifelike its sound is.

What they're really talking about is our patented acoustic waveguide speaker technology. Its unique design means no other system can produce such room-filling sound from such a small enclosure. The result is music that's truly distinctive in its clarity and full, natural bass. So striking, the Oregonian called the Wave radio/CD "one of those little unexplained miracles of acoustic physics."

Experience the lifelike sound of the Bose Wave radio/CD for yourself. It's available directly from Bose, the most respected name in sound, and your satisfaction is guaranteed. Of course, the Wave radio is still available as well. When you call for either product, ask about our risk-free 30-day in-home trial, and our interest-free payment plan. And hear for yourself what everyone's talking about.

To think, all that time making it small,
and all anyone talks about is how it sounds.

LIVE FORD GOLF USA: BELL SOUTH CLASSIC SKY SPORTS 2 10.00PM

Phil Mickelson (pictured) returns to the BellSouth Classic on Georgia's Sugarloaf course aiming to set a record: if he wins he will be the first to successfully defend a title at the tournament. Last year, Mickelson won in a play-off with Gary Nicklaus after heavy rain cut the competition short. A birdie on the par 3 16th gave the San Diego-born left-handed golfer the $504,000 first prize from a total purse of $2.8 million. This year the prize money will be $3.1m.

Analyze This
Sky Premier 10.15pm
Robert De Niro doesn't do a lot of comedy, but in Analyze This, he's excellent. He's a New York gangster who visits a psychiatrist after he starts to suffer panic attacks. Billy Crystal is the shrink who is a little alarmed by the lifestyle of his latest patient.

She was a floating palace filled with high society and high hopes. Setting sail from Southampton to New York, she carried the cream of Edwardian society as well as hundreds who sought a better life in America. It was her maiden voyage and life aboard was gay and vibrant. After all, she was the largest, most luxurious ship afloat, with service that rivalled the best European hotels.

Now, award-winning artist James Griffin introduces you to the grandest and most romantic of liners in a stunning collector's plate series entitled Titanic: Queen of the Ocean.

The Titanic sails forever on the seas of our memory. In each richly detailed image, an assortment of portraits and memorabilia tell of the luxurious life on board for the first-class passengers - taking you into the staterooms and ballrooms and onto the decks of the Titanic.

Crafted in fine porcelain, each plate is individually hand-numbered and accompanied by a corresponding Certificate of Authenticity. KURT'S TRIBUTE

IT'S been almost seven years since the death of Kurt Cobain and I wonder if MTV or VH1 plans to mark the date (5 April) with a Nirvana day or weekend-style tribute? The birthdays or the tragic days of other legends, such as Elvis and John Lennon, never fail to be marked year after year, and rightly so. However, to my generation, Kurt Cobain is a more influential figure and in my mind, and many others, second to none in his music. So why are we left starved?

Daniel Wolton, e-mail

● At the time of going to press, VH1's April schedule had not been confirmed, but VH1 tells us that the anniversary of Kurt Cobain's death will be marked, probably with a showing of Egos & Icons: Nirvana.

★ LIFE IS GRAND!

I'M WRITING to tell you how happy you've made me! At long last, The Larry Sanders Show is back on Play UK! And, on top of that, Sky One is playing King of the Hill and a new series of Futurama! Oh, life is grand! Now if only Sky One would start playing Tales from the Crypt again, I'd be the happiest guy in town!

Ray Layton
e-mail

● Congratulations, Ray, you've won £50 for this month's prize letter! Sky One informs us that there are no plans to repeat Tales from the Crypt, Ray. But life isn't all bad! The new, fifth series of King of the Hill starts this month!

HORROR SHOW

WILL VH1 show the Rocky Horror Picture Show's 25th Anniversary Special shown in America last October? Why should only US Rocky Horror fans see the goods when it's a British-made phenomenon?

L Glasston
Southampton

● VH1 informs us Behind the Music: Rocky Horror Picture Show will be shown later on in 2001.

In the hot seat: The last series of Ellen, starring Ellen DeGeneres, is set to screen soon

LIVING IN WILL AND GRACELAND

I AM a great devotee of Will and Grace and was amazed at the answer to one of your reader's questions in a recent issue, regarding the new, third series. This was aired in the US in September 2000 – I was in the States at the time and it made big news, having taken Frasier's prime slot. The series was nominated for, and won, a huge amount of Emmys. When will Living be showing the third series of Will and Grace?

Mrs A Willmot-Smith
Surrey

● Living informs us that series three and four of Will and Grace have been acquired and will be shown on the channel from September. From April, Living will be showing series one of Will and Grace every Tuesday and Thursday at 6.30pm, followed by series two, three and four.

YANKEE DOODLE DANDY

WILL a new series of New Yankee Workshop, on Discovery Home & Leisure, be made this year? The last series has just ended and I'm a big fan!

Andy Stephan, e-mail

● Discovery Home & Leisure tells us the enormously popular series New Yankee Workshop returns to your screens for a new series in June, including a whole host of new home improvement tips from the master carpenter himself, Norm Abram.

A TITANIC ISSUE

OK, WHAT'S going on? Lots of trailers for Titans prior to its debut. Episode one, Sunday evening, not bad, got potential. Episode two, moves to Tuesday 8.00pm. OK, can manage that – great episode. Episode three, moves to Wednesday morning! Now I'm really confused. Where's it going next? Why is it being moved about?

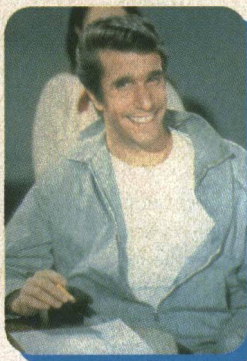

B B K Dempsey, e-mail

● A Sky One spokesperson replies: 'Titans was originally scheduled in a prime time slot, however it was later decided that this slot was not doing the programme justice – hence the move to Wednesdays at 9.00am, where it will hopefully reach its full potential.'

NOT SO HAPPY DAYS

WHY is Happy Days on Sky One? I think that Sky One shows some excellent programmes, but Happy Days [starring Henry Winkler as Fonz, pictured below] is not one of them. Face it, it's, like, 20 years old! Why not put the best animation on in its place – Futurama. I can't think why someone would watch a 1970s show.

Heather Jones, e-mail

ELLEN'S END?

WHEN WILL Paramount Comedy Channel show the final series of Ellen?

Katherine Dimmock
Birmingham

● Paramount Comedy Channel informs us that as soon as rights become available, the final, fifth season of Ellen will be shown on the channel.

GOTHIC A-GO-GO

WELL DONE to Sci-Fi for showing American Gothic. Although it was cancelled after only one season, it's one of the best shows ever! The characters are interesting, the plots are acted out with breathtaking realism and each episode creates a terrifying atmosphere.

I am aware that Sci-Fi has repeated the series twice, but I wonder if it will be shown again. I suggest that other Cable Guide readers watch this ground-breaking and stunning show – it was a grave injustice that it was cancelled in the first place. Jennifer Donnellan, Oldham

● Sci-Fi tells us that American Gothic will be shown again, from the very beginning, from Thursday 22nd at 9.00pm.

VARIETY IS THE SPICE OF LIFE!

CONGRATULATIONS, Granada Plus. It was like a breath of fresh air to see a variety show on television [The Good Old Days, 14 January]. It might be a golden oldie, but to see comedians making people laugh without the volley of four-letter words was just wonderful. And singers with good voices singing songs with melodies and proper lyrics made a pleasant change from the garbage that keeps being turned out by the tone deaf youth of today, give or take the odd number. Keep variety shows alive, and maybe programmes recorded at the London Palladium can be rerun to give viewers proper entertainment.

Graham Copeland, e-mail
